

Tania Laïci works as a Policy Analyst on security and defence in the European Parliamentary Research Service - the in-house think tank of the European Parliament. In her role, she supports Members of the European Parliament in their parliamentary work with briefings and analyses while regularly authoring publications. She is a political scientist with expertise in security and defence issues and Europe's role in the world.

Tania is also doing a part-time PhD on transatlantic defence cooperation at the University of Ghent and within the Doctoral School on the Common Security and Defence Policy at the European Security and Defence College. Past work experiences include the NATO Parliamentary Assembly, the European External Action Service and the private sector. She is a Member of Women in International Security (WIIS) Brussels and in 2019 was selected as a Young Leader for the GLOBSEC Forum and as a New Security Leader for the Warsaw Security Forum. In 2020 she was a recipient of the United Nations and OSCE Scholarship for Peace and Security and of the James S. Denton Transatlantic Fellowship at CEPA.
